Making Connections... John Palmer

Welcome Igniters! We are blessed by your attendance and we hope your weekend has been fruitful. Come back whenever you are in the area!

Last Sunday was pretty amazing. We kicked off our Core Matters series in style with a joint English service and an incredible fellowship dinner! The ladies of the Fellowship Team convey their thanks to all of you who attended, brought food, and helped. There was plenty of food, not only for our dinner, but we also fed the Ed Polly family after his funeral on Monday! What a great demonstration of love.

Today we begin our study of the first core value from our Vision Statement: Belong. Why is it important to understand belonging? Because our world focuses so much on the individual. We know that in our society the rights and benefits of the individual take priority over those of the group. A result of that is a loss of the sense of belonging. There is little sense of a "Greater Good." No feelings of obligation to the community. There is also little sense of protection and support from the group. So in a lot of ways, we are all alone.

Of course the Bible is all about community. We relate to God on our own—each of us must accept His grace and obey the gospel for ourselves—but our relationship with God also creates a relationship with a community.

In order to really get that, we need to know why, how, and to whom we belong. We need to know all the ramifications of belonging. We need to know all about it.

Today we begin!

Youth Connections... Brad Poyet

Today is the conclusion to Ignite. We will say our goodbyes to our friends from out of town and start looking forward to next year. Thank you to everyone who helped in making this happen. A lot of people help me and I could not do this without them. If you would like to get involved next year please be prayerful about it and come and talk to me.

This week is slow in the youth program after a weekend like we have just experienced, but I would like to let you know that I will be posting up some sign up sheets for Life groups that we will have on the 23rd so if you would open your home for some teens then please look to sign up. Thanks
