Making Connections...

John Palmer

Let's face it. Many of us are not usually the "Rah-Rah" types. Oh, we get excited at ballgames and such events, but in most areas of life, we just don't get pulled in.

That is probably doubly true regarding church events. It is an unfortunate fact of church-life that when special events are planned, some people can't be there. Let me hasten to say that there are times it cannot be avoided. Several folks have mentioned to me that travel plans or previous commitments were in place when we began planning for today. The way things are today with travel arrangements, those usually can't be changed. We all understand that.

But most of us are dubious when asked to jump on bandwagons or cheer for something other than a home-team score.

Today is not meant to be such an event. There is no contrivance. We are not hitching up the bandwagon. No company songs will be sung or mottos chanted.

No, this is a serious effort to direct our thoughts and minds toward God and His purposes. We've all been distracted and out of focus. We've talked about it and confessed it. Now it's time to begin to remedy it.

Core Matters is a serious approach to renewing our commitment to Christ and His church. To our Lord and to one another. Along the way we'll talk about belonging to Him and what that means. We'll be challenging one another to embody Christ. We'll explore what growth we should be seeking. And we'll find (perhaps new) ways to serve.

Of course it's all pointless without your participation. If you liken the coming weeks to a rally to avoid, it will all be for nothing. But if you see it as a time to rededicate yourself to God, to renew connections with His people, then I'm confident that God will be among us and will bring about great things. Much is up to you...how will you approach it?
