Making Connections...

John Palmer

One of the distinctive things about my job is being involved with typical milestones of life. Weddings, baptisms, funerals are all events that mark the passage of time. Yesterday we observed such a milestone as we held a service to remember and celebrate the life of Vince Tomaselli.

Vince, Betty, Corina, and Brian began worshipping here many years ago. They brought energy and enthusiasm to the youth group, to their service in our Zone Ministry, and in the way they entertained guests in their home. Vince had a passion for baseball and old Camaros. And for his family. The one quality that will always be memorable to me about Vince is his love and devotion to Betty and the kids.

He was a big, strapping guy. So when he was diagnosed with cancer a few years ago it was a shock. No one believed he wouldn't beat it. Unfortunately he didn't. Last Wednesday morning he went home.

We already missed them all, since they moved to Georgia. But it will be different now. We'll miss Vince in a different way. But—and this is an important one—we will see him again!

That's what makes it easier to deal with this milestone. Death is certain and it is painful. But Christ makes our resurrection a surety. The only way funerals are bearable are when they involve a faithful Christian. Our hope in Christ removes the pain and gives us great joy!

This afternoon is an important meeting for all members. I had it incorrect in last week's bulletin. It is not a bond holders' meeting—unless the bond holders are member of the Griffin Road family. Please be here at 3:00 pm to participate. The elders want to share information with you and get your input as they seek to bring the situation to completion.

Youth Connections...

Brad Poyet

Wow what a weekend. Packed with activities. Thank you for your participation. I know how difficult it can be planning and organizing your lives. I am thankful for the priority that you place on the youth program.

Right now we are busy making the final touches to our upcoming weekend in Naples. We are taking a group of 24 for the weekend. If you would like to attend I have only 2 spots left. Check with me this morning if you would like to join us. We will be gone until Sunday afternoon and the cost is $35 a person. I know that we are going to have a blast and grow spiritually during this camp out. Our theme is the peace that passes and we will look at the awesome peace available to us as Christ followers. I look forward to our time together.
