Making Connections...

John Palmer

Today is a special day for our family, as our son Josh graduates from American Heritage School. I hope you'll indulge me in a little reflection.

Eleven years has brought a lot of changes in our family. When we moved here in 1998, Yonnie and I had three at home: one in high school, one in middle school, and one in elementary. My girls are now out of college and well into graduate school. Soon, Josh will join them in moving to the next part of his life.

Many of you have already experienced the "Empty Nest." We may well be seeking your advice...I'm not sure how I (we) will handle it when Josh goes to college in the fall.

What I do know—and you'll all likely agree with this—is how rapidly the years seem to have passed. My granddad always said that time passed faster as we get older and experience has certainly proven that. It leaves us with wonderful memories and a hopeful future. I know in our case, despite our kids growing up, life is richer as they each have matured. We relate differently and in many ways have more in common with them now than before.

If I could offer encouragement to others in this, it would be two things. One, yes you miss the little ones, but the changes are good and bring a different kind of joy. Two, if your kids are still young, maximize the time. Do things on purpose with your young family to cultivate good memories and wonderful experiences. When the time has passed you cannot get it back, so make the most at every stage of life.

On a personal note, I am so very proud of Josh, and Katie and Lindsay. And I thank all of you for allowing my family to be a part of yours, and for sharing your lives with us!

Thank you for worshiping with us this morning. I have been out of town this weekend but will be back tomorrow. Michelle and I have taken a trip before each of our boys were born. It is a good chance to enjoy some peace before the storm. This summer will be very eventful especially with the new baby due the end of July.

Please sign up in the hallway for the events that we have posted. One is for an end of the school year party at the Gontko's this Friday and Miami Work Camp. If you have not sent in your camp form please do so as soon as possible. They can be downloaded and printed off at <http://cfbiblecamp.org> Please help us out by committing to these events and participating in our program.
